

A full-page photograph of a family of three in a field of purple flowers at sunset. The father, with a beard and wearing a light blue button-down shirt and jeans, carries their young daughter on his shoulders. The daughter is smiling and has her arms around her father's neck. The mother, with long brown hair and wearing a white lace top and light blue pants, stands to the left, holding a bouquet of purple and yellow flowers and kissing the daughter on the cheek. The background is a soft-focus field of purple flowers with a warm, golden sunset glow.

YOUR PHOTOS ARE YOURS

Photographers have something called a model release which has the client consent to the photos that are taken of them to be used to make advertisements, post onto social media, and use on their website.

I am giving up my right to use your family's portraits to do so because I believe that in addition to beautiful photos a family should first and foremost be given the right to their own privacy.

Social media is still a relatively new beast, but I feel the strength of my convictions in paving the moral way in my field to protect my clients in a territory still so devoid of boundaries and uncharted.

If you would like to "Gift Back" a handful of your photos (or your whole gallery) so that I can share them to advertise, that will be appreciated, but never should you feel obligated.

If I am your photographer, these are YOUR photos!
